

Why Take Chances?

Every dealer knows he takes chances when he buys bulk coffees.

He knows, too, that when he offers you bulk coffee that he offers you an item without reputation. One that cannot be depended on for uniform quality. All old dealers have learned this to their sorrow and the disappointment of their patrons.

Some Push Bulk Coffee

It has always been the custom of some dealers to buy one grade of bulk coffee that should sell for 25c and sell the same coffee at three or four prices and often as high as 35c or 40c per pound.

Bulk coffees have no known value. Much depends on the dealer's honesty and even then the user is subject to disappointments for the dealer depends on the roaster's honesty in the matter.

The roaster's package coffee is usually of good uniform quality. His reputation is at stake. It bears his name. He cannot afford to alter the quality. Neither would he allow a dealer to add 10 cents a pound to the selling price.

"Keep Your Hands Out"

Years ago when we sold bulk coffee we placed cards on our coffees, "Keep your hands out." But we could not enforce it. The first impulse of the purchasers of bulk coffee is to put their hands into it whether they are clean or not. Roasted bulk coffee cannot be washed before using which is deplorable.

There are many other reasons why we quit selling bulk coffees.

We know we now give greater values for the money than when we sold bulk coffee. Besides it is always sanitary, no hands having touched it since it was washed before roasting.

Try any one of our coffees. Buy our coffee that we sell for 5c per pound less than you have been paying for any brand of package or can coffee.

You will be happily surprised.

GIRL'S AGE FIXED BY SOMETHING YOU DO NOT KNOW THE DATE OF BIRTH ABOUT POULTRY INDUSTRY, BUT OF A CALF WHICH YOU CAN LEARN AT SHOW

"As a usual thing, I am a man of calm and even temper. But occasionally I am driven to disgust and anger and my feelings impel me to criticism."

That was the explanatory prelude to a statement issued from George Shorten, city sanitary commissioner, this morning after he had opened his mail and discovered that out of the ten births reported, two had failed to include the sex of the child; two others were dated last year, and another had neglected to state the home address.

"The state authorities, of course, will be notified of this negligence and enforce a proper respect for the laws governing the report of vital statistics," continued the commissioner. "I am unable to understand why parents and physicians and nurses practice such carelessness. Undoubtedly, they are familiar with the law and know that these reports must be accurately and promptly made."

"Just the other day, to indicate necessity from proper reports, a young lady, a pretty, attractive, intelligent society debutante, insisted that her father make good his promise to give her a diamond ring on her nineteenth birthday."

"But you're not nineteen," the father said. "You're only seventeen."

"The argument waxed warm. There was no statistics at the city hall or courthouse to help out and the family bible offered no assistance in that it contained no record of births. They were up against a circumstance until a farmer came to their rescue."

"She is seventeen," said the farmer. "I know because we had a Jersey calf born on the same night—I have a record of the calf's birth and recollect that your daughter was born on the identical date."

"That was a pretty mess, wasn't it? A nice, good, sweet girl growing into womanhood and it required the coincidental fact that a calf was born on the same night to conclusively establish her exact age. Physicians and nurses and parents should give these birth reports a more definite and careful attention."

COMMERCIAL CLUB OF BRIGHAM CITY HAS A LUNCHEON

BRIGHAM CITY, Jan. 16.—The Box Elder Commercial club entertained last night at a "meatless and wasteless" luncheon in the club rooms and enjoyed a get-together social that surpassed all previous functions by a good margin. It was a "meatless" affair and a comic paper read by George A. Anderson made up of comic sketches of prominent members made a big hit on the program. The principal feature of the program was the line-up of former presidents of the club, each of whom gave a five minutes' talk. Of eight presidents who had presided over the club since its organization, there were seven present, and in their remarks a comprehensive history of the club's activities was obtained. President W. E. Davis was the first speaker and extended a welcome to the club. He was followed by ex-presidents John C. Knudson, E. W. Dunn, Judge Justin D. Call, W. J. Lowe, J. Francis Merrill and E. M. Tyson. The speeches were interspersed with music as follows: Selection by Crawford's jazz band; solo by Dr. R. T. Willey; solo by Harry W. Lawson; reading of a story by Harry Lawson by Mayor John W. Peters and a solo by Victor E. Madsen.

Manager A. L. Glasman and W. R. McBride, of the Standard, were present, and the latter gave a brief speech, concluding with the announcement of the Standard's anniversary number to be issued soon. The program concluded, the party repaired to the pool room where the pool tables had been covered by Chief Rudolph Kaiser and heavily laden with a "Hooverized" lunch consisting of cold chicken, wheatless sandwiches, pickles, fruits, nuts and soft drinks. The remainder of the evening was spent in general sociability.

CROWN PAINLESS DENTISTS

East Side Washington, between 24th and 25th Street.

2468 Washington Ave.

(Written for The Standard by C. F. Williams, editor Northwest Poultry Journal, Salem, Ore.)

To many people in our large and small cities, the poultry show means little or nothing. In our largest cities, we find only a small percentage of the folks interested in a poultry exhibition, regardless of how large or complete the exhibit may be. For this there is a reason, of course, though there is no reason to the reason. It is regrettable that our people do not take the time to interest themselves more thoroughly in the industries which go to make up our wealth and which, by the by, have a great deal to do with their everyday life either as a necessity or a comfort. We are too careless—we are satisfied to mope along in our old rut, day-in and day-out. We do the things we are paid to do, or which we enjoy, and let our days pass at that. Herein lies the reason why our poultry shows and agricultural fairs are not patronized by the masses with the intention of learning something beneficial.

Public Careless. How many of The Standard's readers have attended county and state fairs for years where fruit, vegetables, cattle, sheep, swine and horses have been on display year after year and yet, if placed among five breeds of cattle, could point them out and name each one correctly? How many, if handed four kinds of apples could with positiveness name correctly each variety? Don't you see how ignorant most of us are, after years of educational advantages? Why spend all this money and effort if the public appreciates only the amusements?

This is my first visit to an Ogden poultry exhibition. I am so well pleased with the people and the exhibit, I trust it will not be the last time. In quality you have many a section beaten four years from Monday. Yesterday a bird man obtained possession of a partridge with $25—he sent the money east with the idea of securing a male bird that would put the quality in his future flock. He has by far better birds in his own yards and on exhibit at the show. See the point? Breeders in this section need not send east or any other place for quality. If that bird is worth $25, then there are Ogden birds worth $100!

Appeal to the People. People of Ogden, you have an exhibition here worth many a dollar to you from an industrial and educational standpoint. What are you going to do about it? Are you going to learn some of the lessons this display has in store for the patron or are you going to let the week slide by without showing the least interest in one of our most important industries—a very important one at this particular time in our national life. We need meat now, but oh, how much more we need meat a year, two years or more from now if the war continues? And who is there among us who would say when peace will reign again? Isn't it worth our time and the small admission fee to get out and patronize these movements and thus encourage the breeding of poultry? If we are in a position to have not the inclination to raise fowls, let us keep up the enthusiasm of the other fellow who is conveniently situated and has the desire to raise birds. Few among us who do not like "chicken" and "fry two."

No Money in Shows. The public is often of the opinion that these poultry associations are formed with the idea of making money; that these poultry shows are staged only to make a few dollars. They are not money-making institutions. They are a dozen or more of men and women associate themselves together, elect officers and decide to hold a show. No salaries are paid, the members take care of their duties willingly without remuneration and, at the end of the exhibition, are glad and surprised if the gate receipts and the entry fees have been sufficient to pay the small cash premiums on the fowls necessary to induce exhibitors from out-of-town to send their chickens to the show. Then there is rent to pay, light bills to meet, advertising, and printing to take care of. To get the right birds under the ribbons, it is essential to secure the services of a capable judge; one with a reputation for ability and integrity. To bring such a judge to the city, costs money because railroad fare and hotel bills must be met and the judge must be paid for what he knows, the same as any other man expects and deserves payment.

My object in calling attention to these items of expense is to disabuse the minds of readers of the idea that a poultry show is brought forth each year as a money-making scheme. It is for the purpose of educating the public, or that part of the public that will come out and learn. It is also for the purpose of interesting hundreds of other people in the raising of chickens. Right now there are less than 40 per cent of the fowls in the United States than there were two years ago! Other livestock has depreciated in quantity, too, and unless we wake up, there will be a meatless day every day in the week!

Will Aid the Visitors. You ask, "What is to be learned at the poultry show?" All chickens look alike to me. True, all chickens look alike to you now, but they will not, if you visit the display this week and give the exhibitors, the judge or the writer an opportunity of pointing out the various breeds and varieties and calling attention to the qualities of each. This we will gladly do, if given the opportunity.

Can you tell when a chicken is laying? Whether she will lay in two weeks or three months? Whether she will be a good layer or one that will produce at least 175 eggs in a year, or only around sixty? Hens have their capacity the same as a cow has a capacity for milk. Without capacity, either will be profitable. The selection of such hens is called "culling the flock" and means success or failure to the man feeding high-priced grain. The Hohans system of selecting good layers has been tried out and found successful and is used the land over by large commercial poultrymen. The book, "The Call of the Hen," gives this system in detail and visitors will be given a free demonstration of this system, if they ask the writer at the show any day this week. We're here to aid the people who are willing and eager to learn something about poultry.

Judge James A. Tucker of Detroit, Mich., will be here most of the week and will kindly explain the fine points of exhibit on poultry or the scientific points of mating. He is hired for the purpose of placing the awards and aiding our poultrymen and is recognized as one of the top-notchers of the country.

The writer believes in the patriotism of Ogden folks and firmly believes that anyone who can will make it a point to attend the poultry show this week. It is open every day from 9 in the morning till 10 o'clock at night. There are 152 varieties of chickens, waterfowl and pigeons. Over half of the varieties are represented at this show—a show that will cost the association at least $1000 to stage. Are you going to do your part in making this exhibition a success, and thus an encouragement to poultrymen? As a visitor of the show and the city, we appeal to business, professional and all men and women to make this the greatest poultry show, in point of attendance, that the state of Utah ever witnessed!

Getting Too Fat? Try This—Reduce

People who don't grow too fat are the fortunate exception. But if you find the fat accumulating or already accumulating, you will be wise to follow this suggestion, which is endorsed by thousands of people who know. Ask your druggist (or if you prefer write to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.) for a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets. 75c is the price the world over. By doing this you will be safe from harmful drugs and be able to reduce two, three or four pounds a week without dieting or exercise.—Advertisement.

DRIVING AUTOS ON THE CAR TRACKS CAUSES DELAYS

With the fall of the heavy snow the troubles of the street lines of the Utah-Idaho Central Railroad company continued. Staff bristled snow-sweepers and snow plows have been kept busy all day and all night during the past few days, clearing the tracks of snow that the cars might operate. This is all very well but with the opening of the town garages motorists plow through the snow from their driveways and on to the tracks and start for town. They get onto the street car company's roadbed and go tearing into the city and out of it with as much ease, almost, as though they were on a paved street. This makes trouble for the street car company, however, and the company has a considerable grudge to unload against auto drivers in this respect. The automobiles, it seems, pack the snow down, knock down the banks onto the tracks and create a condition which causes delay, congestion and general trouble all over the lines.

The cars cannot run at normal speed over the rails thus packed and car service has been held up all over the city because of this. Officials of the company declare the practice is entirely unfair and unjust, because the stopping of the car lines, or even their delay for a few moments, causes untold inconvenience and delay all over the city and consequent loss.

Last year the same situation arose. The heavy snows made the roads almost impassable and automobilists ran their machines down the car tracks. As a result, the tracks were obstructed and there was a great amount of inconvenience and even distress felt in the city.

This morning the Washington avenue car, coming from the south, which is usually ridden by large numbers of working people, was so late that those ordinarily riding on it had to start walking to the city.

LENINE RELEASES

RUMANIAN ENVOY

American Ambassador Francis and Other Diplomats Make Vigorous Protest.

PETROGRAD, Monday, Jan. 14—9:20 p. m.—(By the Associated Press)

—Constantine Diamandi, Rumanian minister, who was arrested Saturday by the Bolshevik government, will be released tonight. This decision, M. Zalkind, assistant to Foreign Minister Trotsky, informs the Associated Press. This action was taken after a meeting of the Council of People's commissaries and after the diplomatic corps had protested to Premier Lenine.

Diplomats went to the Smolny institute and were met by the premier's personal guard of soldiers, workmen and sailors. They were escorted to the premier's private room, American Ambassador Francis in the lead. Premier Lenine spoke to the diplomats in French. The conference lasted forty minutes and was carried on behind closed doors. The diplomats left the institute under the impression that nothing definite had been accomplished.

Premier Lenine is said to have told the diplomats that he realized the imprisonment of M. Diamandi was a breach of international law, but said it was designed as a protest against a similar action of the Rumanian government in arresting and disarming Bolsheviks. Lenine told the diplomats that he himself could not order the release of M. Diamandi but would have to refer the question to the Council of People's commissaries.

M. DIAMANDI FREED. LONDON, Jan. 16.—M. Diamandi and the other members of his staff were set free by the Bolshevik government Tuesday afternoon, according to a Reuter dispatch from Petrograd.

Diplomatic Corps Indignant. The diplomatic corps had agreed to present to the Bolshevik leader the following demand signed by the representatives of the nations named:

"The undersigned diplomatic missions of all the nations represented in Russia, as follows, the United States, Japan, France, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, Denmark, Spain, China, Serbia, Portugal, Argentina, Greece, Brazil, Persia, Spain, The Netherlands, Italy and Great Britain profoundly indignant because of the arrest of M. Diamandi, the Rumanian minister, and affirming the unanimity of their sentiment on the subject of the violation of diplomatic immunity respected throughout the ages by all governments, demand the immediate release of M. Diamandi and the other members of his legation."

Minister Diamandi was arrested at the Rumanian legation during the dinner hour Sunday night. A group of Red guards, headed by an officer, demanded and received admittance to the legation, when they informed Diamandi that he was under arrest. At the same time they arrested Lieutenant Kray, attached to the Rumanian military mission. The prisoners were permitted to take with them their personal attire and they were taken away, presumably to the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul.

At midnight the Red guard returned and arrested Colonel Palada, head of the military mission, who was not present at the time of the first arrests.

DANIEL WILLARD

RESIGNS POST

Chairman of War Industries Board to Be Replaced When Successor Is Found.

GOES BACK TO ROAD

Importance of Baltimore and Ohio in War Work Justifies Act.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, has resigned as chairman of the war industries board. His resignation will be accepted as soon as a successor is found.

Mr. Willard's friends here said today he had the step under consideration some time. He was confronted, they said, with the alternative of resigning the presidency of the Baltimore & Ohio or he remained as chairman of the war industries board. It was said that the situation was presented in this way to President Wilson and it was decided that the importance of the Baltimore & Ohio in war work was sufficient to demand Mr. Willard's entire attention.

Mr. Willard's letter of resignation was presented at the White House last night. John D. Ryan of New York has been mentioned as the possible successor.

YOUNG AMERICAN ENGINEER DIES

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Ivan Nouck, a young engineer of Baltimore, one of the few Americans remaining in the French Foreign Legion, is said by the Vocal to have died of the wound received last week in the attack made by the Foreign Legion in the neighborhood of Flery.

Allen B. Louni, of St. Louis, another American member of the Legion, has obtained a transfer to the American army.

Grenadier Ivan Nouck was wounded several times, winning the French war cross and two citations. A Paris dispatch on Sunday said that in the Flery attack he had been injured severely in the right arm, amputation of which probably would be necessary.

Allen Blount joined the Foreign Legion last April and was proposed for the war cross with palm for taking thirty prisoners single handed on the Verdun front.

Ruffians Attack American. T. J. Durand of the American army, detailed to the French ministry of war, was attacked without provocation yesterday by ten young ruffians at Ivry-sur-Seine, a suburb of Paris, and left for dead. He was picked up and recovered consciousness after being cared for in a drug store. He was able to describe his assailants eight of whom were arrested.

LIEUT. F. L. PACKARD AGAIN ON DUTY

Lieut. F. L. Packard, according to advice received in Ogden, has sufficiently recovered from injuries recently received in an auto accident, to resume his duties as mustering clerk at Camp Lewis, American Lake, Wash. He was thrown from an automobile and suffered a severe sprain of his left knee.

Lieutenant Packard is the son of Fred Packard, superintendent of the Ogden city waterworks shops. He enlisted in the army shortly after war was declared and for a time, was stationed at the Presidio, near San Francisco. He has received several promotions and otherwise proved his adaptability for military service. Lieut. Packard visited his parents during the holidays and made an address at one of the Weber club Wednesday Round Table meetings. He is a young man of splendid promise.

STOLEN BANK MONEY FOUND

Sixty-two Thousand Dollars Hidden in Walls of Captain Whistler's Quarters.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Jan. 16.—The money taken from the Army bank at Camp Funston by Captain Lewis Whistler, said to have been more than $62,000, was found today hidden in the walls of Whistler's quarters in the barracks here.

The money, in currency, was found stored neatly in a hiding place Captain Whistler evidently had prepared for it. The finding of the money, it was said, probably closes the case as far as the accomplice theory is concerned. Whistler killed four men and seriously injured a fifth when robbing the bank. The murders were committed when he saw that he was recognized by the bank officers. With detection certain, Captain Whistler committed suicide.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The following postmasters were nominated today by President Wilson:
